

Feng Shui is the Chinese philosophy of living in harmony with the elements of nature and balancing energy or chi to restore vitality in your environment. There is also a type of Feng Shui for the land. The clearing of the old, stagnant vibrations and energies of one's property, home or business to restore harmony and create sacred space. This can be obtained through geomancy or when human consciousness meets and dialogues with the spirit of the earth, which empowers the harmonious interaction between person and place in a co-creative effort. In a recent article in the Carrol Country Times, a wonderful author and expert on space clearing by the name of Christian Hummel quotes, "In order for a home to be in harmony, the life energy or chi of that property must be in balance." Hummel is the author of "Do it Yourself Space Clearing Kit, working with nature to enhance the energies of your home".

Geopathic stress and negative thought forms, as well as electromagnetic energies from our computers, TV's and cellular phones, get trapped in the earth's natural magnetic grid lines. These lines run through every part of the planet. As these invisible lines run through any type of life form, it has negative effects on that organism, be it plant, animal, human and the planet itself. Some of the negative effects from geopathic stress on humans are sleep disorders, vision problems, memory loss, chronic fatigue, inability to heal, anxiety, dizziness, ADD, frequent headaches, insatiability, nausea, problematic menstrual cycles, hyperactivity and depression. This is just to mention a few. The grid lines are especially harmful if they run through your bed, or certain places where you spend long periods of time. The grid lines hold noxious energies. These negative vibrations affect every part of your being, physically, emotionally, mentally and spiritually. By releasing geopathic grid lines and negative thought forms from the land, it is able to hold a higher frequency that is beneficial to all forms of life within that property. Some of the benefits of sacred space clearing for humans are an increase in energy and vitality, better quality of sleep, strengthened immune system and a feeling of ease, well being and peace. This also benefits your plant life inside and outside. Vegetation becomes healthier and there is always an increase in birds and butterflies. Even your pets may become healthier and more peaceful. There is far more to be said on the positive effects, however, this is just to mention a few.

There have also been positive results in clearing land on properties that are having difficulty selling. Homeowners that have their property cleared are guaranteed to sell it quicker due to the feeling of harmony the land emits after being cleared. Properties and buildings hold the energies of the occupants that lived there and will hold these energies until they are released. If the people who have dwelled there were of a negative nature, that energy will stay there. The house may not sell as quickly because of the feelings of disharmony. After having been cleared of negative energies and geopathic stress, the energy is positive, therefore your chances of selling the property increase.

Areas inside the home that always seem to be cluttered usually have a noxious stress line running through them. After being cleared, the negative energy leaves and before you know it, you feel the need to clean up the space being cluttered. Hummel says, "Clearing clutter successfully must include not only physical labor, but also adjustments in the home's energy to achieve emotional balance."

The benefits of sacred space clearing are too numerous to be ignored. This type of energy work also has planetary benefits. It has been proven with advanced techniques to lower air pollution, increase bird, animal, and marine life and even balance weather patterns. Sacred Space clearing for the land will help you feel good, knowing you are actually helping the land to be at its highest vibration and help you to live a more harmonious life.
